Displacement

Mazar Bus Station Camp is situated close to Khail Main Street. The site is on a plot which is not integrated into any Kabuli neighbourhood and is built on privately owned land. Each household's rent is collected and pooled by a settlement committee which then pays the landowner a monthly sum of 24,500 Afghanis. The entire population consists of Tajik IDPs, originating from Char Darah, Kunduz province.

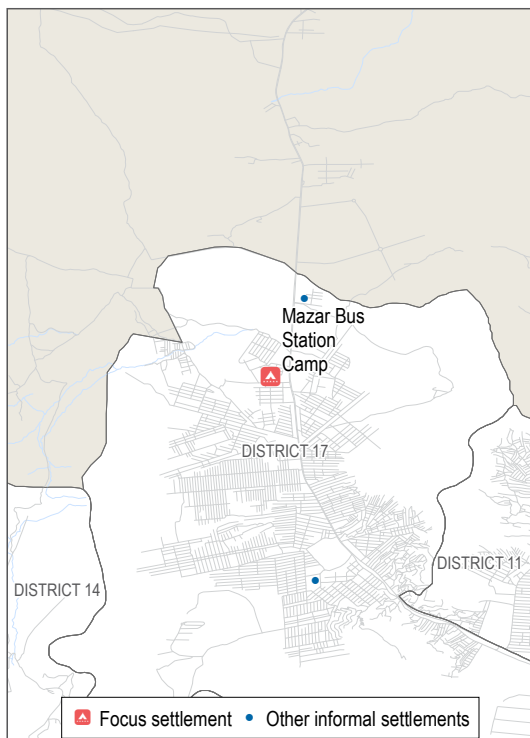

The first influx of 52 households established the camp in 2013. In 2016, eight households travelled to the site. It is expected that the settlement will expand in 2017.

The settlement does not have access to essential facilities such as school, education or health services. However, the private land offers security and since residents feel they have no alternative shelter options, they reportedly plan to stay in the site.
