Displacement

Tasady No 4 Camp is located in the town of Shahrak-e Global, behind Tasadi neighbourhood. Residents live in privately owned households that are dispersed amongst the host community. However the landlord does not receive any payment. The population is ethnically diverse with 50% Tajiks, 35% Pashtuns, 10% Uzbeks and 5% Hazaras. The settlement hosts both IDPs, mostly travelling from Laghman, Kunduz and Nangarhar provinces, and returnees previously residing in Pakistan and Iran.

The first wave of 40 IDP households arrived in 2013 from Alingar, Laghman and returnees from Peshawar, Pakistan. A second wave of 20 households arrived in 2014, with IDPs moving from Achin, Nangarhar and returnees again from Peshawar. A further influx of 25 households joined the settlement in 2015 with IDPs travelling from Aliabad in Kunduz and Hormozgan in Iran. A final 25 IDP households from Aliabad arrived in 2016. Since this last arrival, the site has no capacity to further expand.

Residents mostly left their location of origin due to a lack of drinking water, healthcare and schools. They now reportedly intend to stay in the settlement as it is free and there are employment prospects in the city.
