2. Background & Rationale

Since the beginning of the crisis in March 2011, conflict has caused 4.8 million Syrians to flee to neighbouring countries and further abroad. Within Syria, 6.3 million people are internally displaced, and an estimated 13.5 million are in need of humanitarian assistance (HNO 2017). The volatile security and access situation within the country commonly impedes the response; this is exacerbated by a lack of detailed information on humanitarian needs and vulnerabilities.

In order to strengthen the sectorial evidence-based approach, REACH will build upon the first comprehensive SNFI assessment carried out in December 2016, by implementing a second assessment round of data collection and analysis on behalf of UNHCR and the Shelter Cluster. The assessment will take place across accessible areas of the Governorates of Idleb, Hama, Homs, Aleppo, Ar-Raqqa, Deir-Ez-Zor, Dar'a and Quneitra, collecting information on NFI availability, shelter conditions and status of households. This second round will allow gathering updated data to inform the HNO 2018 as well as allowing comparability with the previous round, which was conducted during winter months, enabling a greater understanding of seasonal shifts in shelter and NFI needs. Data collection for the Shelter/NFI and WASH Assessments will be coordinated in areas of overlapping coverage. Specifically, a joint questionnaire with indicators for both WASH and SNFI will be administered in selected sub-districts of North West Syria. The current round of WASH data collection builds on the previous round of data collection in April 2017, and the six sub-districts assessed during this round were chosen based on large recorded IDP influx (and thus a higher likelihood of changed WASH conditions) in these areas since April. For all other sub-districts assessed in April (but not in the current assessment), the WASH cluster will use data from the April round. While REACH will produce a report and governorate-level factsheets for the SNFI assessment, the WASH assessment is solely a data collection exercise, and the only output to be produced for it is a dataset delivered to the WASH cluster.

5. Methodology

5.1. Methodology overview

The assessment will use a mixed methodology approach in order to gather data on as wide an area as possible, using a combination of REACH enumerators and partner enumerators. Where access and security considerations permit, data will be collected through direct randomly selected household interviews. Where security considerations render these methods unfeasible, specifically in Deir-ez-Zor and Ar-Raqqa governorates, direct Key Informant (KI) interviews with purposively sampled members of the community will be the primary method of data collection.

For areas in which household interviews are possible, approximately 106 interviews per sub-district will be conducted to allow findings to be representative at the sub-district level with a confidence level of 95% and a margin of error 10% at the sub-district level, and at the governorate level with a confidence level of at least 95% and maximum margin of error 5%.

For areas in which KI interviews are the primary method of data collection, approximately 10 KI interviews will be conducted at the community level in each sub-district and reported at the sub-district level during analysis, although (as is typical with KI interviews) findings will be indicative rather than representative of either the community or sub-district. The alternative option of having KIs report at the sub-district level is not preferred as it is difficult for KIs to report on the larger geographical area due to a lack of detailed knowledge of multiple communities. In each sub-district, the exact number of KI interviews will depend on the number and size of communities in the sub-district: the aim will be one KI reporting on each community with a greater number of KIs where a community is larger than 20,000 people. Where it is not possible to assess every community in the sub-district, the aim will be to cover at least 80% of the sub-district population within the assessed communities (with additional KI interviews conducted in sub-districts for which 10 KIs are not sufficient to cover 80% of the population). KIs will be selected on the basis of relevant shelter/NFI specific knowledge.

In contrast with the December 2016 shelter/NFI assessment, a separate tool to assess collective shelters will not be deployed within this assessment in order to keep the scope of the assessment manageable. However, to ensure that collective shelter populations are represented, enumerators assessing communities with collective shelters will be instructed to collect a proportion of their surveys from collective shelters (equivalent to the proportion of the community that lives in collective shelters).

The WASH household survey will be administered along with the SNFI household survey, to the same sample of households, in 4 sub-districts in Idlib governorate and 2 in Aleppo governorate. As the last WASH survey was administered as recently as April 2017 in most sub-districts of northwest Syria, the sub-districts in Idlib and Aleppo chosen for this round are those that have seen large IDP inflows since the previous assessment. It is important to note that the data collected for the WASH survey will not be included in the analysis for the SNFI assessment, and will only be used to produce a separate dataset that will be sent to the WASH cluster.

5.2. Indicators and tool design

Indicators were designed in collaboration with UNHCR and the Shelter and WASH Clusters, and were based on:

- a) The indicators used in shelter and NFI sections of the previous round of the SNFI household survey (December 2016) and the WASH household survey (April 2017). The December 2016 assessment also included sections on Livelihoods and WASH, focus group discussions, and a separate collective shelter tool, all of which will not be included in this assessment in order for its scope to be more manageable and more clearly targeted towards the Shelter Cluster's information needs.¹
- b) The Shelter Cluster Common Floor Tool, established by the Whole of Syria (WoS) shelter cluster to standardise indicators used across shelter assessments, including the shelter component of the HNO.
- c) Input received from cluster members at the WoS level, as well as the Northern and Southern hubs in Gaziantep and Amman respectively. This input was incorporated through the addition of indicators and questions, and, if approved by the WoS Shelter Cluster, the modifications of questions and response options.

Following finalisation of indicators, tools will be developed with and approved by the SNFI and WASH clusters and UNHCR, using the indicator list and past tools as a basis. Overall, three questionnaires will be developed for the assessment, covering as many of the indicators as are appropriate for the method of data collection.

¹ While many indicators are aligned between the shelter and NFI sections of the December 2016 assessment and this planned assessment, the ability to carry out comparisons between the two in the Shelter/NFI report to show changes over time will be limited. This is due to the narrower scope of this assessment (e.g. fewer sectors assessed, no focus group discussions or collective shelter tool), as well as to differences in sub-district level coverage that prevent governorate-level comparisons. However, partners are welcome to use the datasets from the two assessments to make comparisons for aligned indicators in specific sub-districts of overlapping coverage.

- Household level survey questionnaire with both SNFI and WASH components (administered in the 6 sub-districts where samples are needed for both SNFI and WASH)
- Household level survey questionnaire with only SNFI components
- KI interview questionnaire with only a SNFI component for areas in which household surveys are not possible

The KI interview questionnaire will be designed with the aim of covering as many indicators as possible as those covered by household surveys, recognising that this may not be possible in all instances. See Annex 3 for a full list of indicators assessed in each tool and the full questionnaires.

Tools will include the English versions of the questionnaires (HH and KI), Arabic translations of these, development of Kobo forms and development of paper forms for use in the field in some areas. Arabic translations will be led by Syrian nationals to ensure appropriate language. Kobo forms will be developed following finalisation of Arabic translations, and tested thoroughly. Use of the Kobo Collect platform allows data entry errors to be limited through building constraints and relevancy expressions into the tool. Where possible, enumerators will enter interview data directly into the Kobo tool. However, in some areas (particularly Idlib, Aleppo, Homs and Hama governorates) security constraints prevent enumerators from using Kobo in the field. Paper forms based on the Kobo tool are developed for use in these areas. Enumerators will collect data on these paper forms, and then enter data from these paper forms into Kobo every day when they return from the field to a secure location.

5.3. Coverage and sampling

Overall coverage

To determine the sampling frame, an extensive mapping exercise was conducted in these locations to give an indication of the likely possible level of access. Based on this, the assessment will be carried out in 8 governorates: Aleppo, Ar-Raqqa, Deir-ez-Zor, Hama, Homs, Idlib, Dar'a and Quneitra. Of the 158 sub-districts in these 8 governorates, 87 will be assessed. These 87 sub-districts are home to 60% of the population in the assessed governorates, and 34% of the population of Syria.

All 14 sub-districts in Deir-ez-Zor governorate and 9 out of 10 in Ar-Raqqa governorate (home to 8% of the population of Syria) will be assessed through KI interviews, while 64 sub-districts in Aleppo, Hama, Homs, Idlib, Dar'a and Quneitra (home to 25% of the population of Syria) will be assessed through representative household interviews (Table 1). Of these 64 sub-districts, the following 6 will also be covered for the WASH assessment: Dana, Idlib, Jisr-Ash-Shugur, Maaret Tamasrin (all in Idlib governorate); A'zaz and Menbij (both in Aleppo governorate).

The ability to collect the targeted sample may change due to the dynamic security and access situation inside Syria; as such these tables display initial aims rather than guaranteed final coverage and may be updated whilst data collection is ongoing.

Sampling for specific data collection methodologies

Map 1: Sub-district coverage by data collection methodology used

Household interviews

Where household-level data collection is possible, random household sampling will be implemented to generate a statistically significant stratified sample designed to allow findings to be representative at the sub-district level with a 95% confidence level and 10% margin of error³. As such, approximately 106 interviews will be conducted in each sub-district.⁴ Further, during data analysis, weighting will be conducted for any aggregated results, to account for the fact that a household

³ The formula used by REACH to calculate the sample size was first outlined by Krejcie and Morgan in 1970 and has been widely used in social research, including humanitarian research, ever since (3,313 known citations). It is described as follows: $n = \frac{X^2 \times N \times (1-P)}{(ME^2 \times (N-1))} + (X^2 \times P \times (1-P))$
Where: n = Sample size, X^2 = Chi-square for the specified confidence level at 1 degree of freedom, N = Population size, P = Population proportion (assumed to be 0.5 to generate maximum sample size), ME = desired Margin of Error (expressed as proportion)

- Krejcie and Morgan (1970) "Determining Sample Size for Research Activities" (Educational and Psychological Measurement, 30, pp. 607-610)

in a smaller sub-district will be more likely to be selected across the entire area assessed; this will allow results to be representative at the governorate level with a confidence level of at least 95% and maximum margin of error 5%. Findings at the governorate level will only be generalisable to the sub-districts included in the sampling frame.

Further, the sample will allow for results to be compared between rural and urban areas in order to identify disparities. For the purposes of the assessment, the classification of communities as urban or rural in the HNO 2017 will be used.

The sampling frame will consist of populations in all accessible communities within the sub-districts to be assessed. In some sub-districts, certain communities or parts of communities may be inaccessible due to security constraints (for example, parts of Ariha sub-district in Idlib governorate).

The unit of measurement to be used in the survey is the household, though respondents will also be asked to detail the number of household members disaggregated by age and sex, to allow responses to certain questions to be analysed at the individual level or by population group. Further, initial questions will be asked regarding the total number of households and people within a shelter to allow the total number of people per shelter to be determined. For the purposes of this assessment, a household is defined as a group living together, generally eating with one pot (sharing food); as such, within one shelter there may be several households.

Within each sub-district, two stage random sampling will be implemented. First, Probability Proportional to Size (PPS) methods will be used to randomly generate a list of communities to survey within each sub-district, along with a targeted number of surveys for each community. The probability that a community is selected, as well as the number of surveys to conduct per community, will therefore be influenced by the comparative population size of the community; this ensures that all households within the sub-district have the same probability of being selected for the survey.

For sub-districts in which the two-stage sample requires more than 20 communities to be visited in the sub-district, cluster sampling will be used instead, with the minimum cluster size set at 5 surveys per community. This is because an excessive number of communities would make it unfeasible (due to travel time and other logistical constraints) for enumerators to collect the necessary number of surveys from the sub-district. To account for the design effect of cluster sampling, a higher number of surveys will be collected in these sub-districts in order to meet the same confidence level and error margins as in the sub-districts where two stage sampling is used. As the target precision of the household data collected using cluster and two stage sampling will be the same, this data can be aggregated together at the governorate level and can be compared between sub-districts.

However, for communities that contain a camp or collective shelter, the sample for the community will be stratified between the camp/collective shelter and the community, with the target number of surveys to be collected in the camp/collective shelter and in the rest of the community determined based on the population ratio between the two and specified to enumerators in advance.

KI community-level interviews

Where access to the population of interest is possible but restricted, hence ruling out implementation of probability sampling methods, information will be gathered through community-level KI interviews with purposively sampled members of the community. Initial access mapping exercises indicate that this will primarily be relevant for Deir-ez-Zor and Ar-Raqqa governorates.

KIs will be selected on the basis of relevant shelter/NFI specific knowledge, and asked to report at the community level, which is preferred over the alternative option of having KIs report at the sub-district level because it is often difficult for KIs to report on the larger geographical area due to a lack of detailed knowledge of multiple communities. The KI questionnaire will be harmonised with the household questionnaire to ensure that findings are as comparable as possible.

In each sub-district, approximately 10 KIs will be interviewed and asked to report about their community. To account for difficulties reporting across large communities, where a community is larger than 20,000 people, a greater number of KIs will be interviewed and their responses aggregated. The rule used for number of KIs per community is as follows:

Community size	Min number of KIs
0-20,000	1
20-40,000	2
40-60,000	3
60-80,000	5
80,000 +	6

KI interviews will be distributed across communities in a sub-district according to the guidelines in the table above. For sub-districts where fewer than 10 KIs are needed to meet the targets in the guidelines (e.g. sub-districts with fewer than 10 communities, and no community with more than 20,000 people), fewer than 10 KI interviews will take place. For sub-districts in which 10 KIs are insufficient to cover 100% of the population, KIs will be selected from the 10 largest communities in each sub-district. In sub-districts where this does not amount to coverage of at least 80% of the population, additional KI interviews will take place to meet the target of 80% coverage.

During analysis, records will be weighted by size of community, and aggregated to the sub-district level in order to give results for the population across the sub-district. Each record (i.e. KI interview) will be assigned a weighting coefficient according to the population of the community assessed. For communities with more than one KI, the assigned weight will be calculated by dividing the population by the number of forms submitted. For continuous variables, results such as averages at the sub-district level will be calculated with record weight taken into account (i.e. weighted averages). Similarly, sub-district proportions for categorical 'select one' or 'select multiple' variables will be calculated using weighted frequencies (i.e. frequencies at the record level multiplied by the respective weight of that record). Record-level weighting will also be used for findings presented at the governorate level. Analysis will be done in SPSS, which provides tools for easy implementation of such a weighting system. However, it should be noted that this methodology does not result in representative findings, which will be indicative only.

Organisations responsible for data collection

Map 2: Sub-district coverage by organisation collecting data

REACH enumerators will collect household data from 48 sub-districts in Aleppo, Idleb, Hama, Homs, Dar'a and Quneitra governorates. They will be supervised by REACH field coordinators and assessment officers based in Turkey, Jordan and the Kurdistan Region of Iraq (KRI).

SRN enumerators will be responsible for data collection in 38 sub-districts. This includes household survey data from 14 sub-districts of Aleppo, Idleb, Homs and Hama governorates, and KI interview data from all 24 sub-districts of Ar-Raqqa and Deir-ez-Zor governorates. The REACH assessment team will assist SRN by preparing the sampling frame, and will provide coordination, training and technical guidance.

Training

Partners such as SRN will be trained using a Training of Trainers approach, comprising modules detailing the assessment, methodology and approach; Kobo download, use, and how to train enumerators on Kobo remotely; sampling for each method of data collection; questionnaires for each method of data collection; and data checking / cleaning procedures.

www.reach-initiative.org

Once training is complete, teams will conduct a pilot round of data collection in the field, in order to practice identifying households or KIs according to the relevant sampling methodology, administering the questionnaire and using the Kobo form. This will allow identification of any additional required training or adjustments to the tool. Feedback from this process will be immediate, allowing issues to be addressed before the commencement of data collection and the tool to be amended if necessary.

Data collection

For the areas in which household level interviews are possible, households will be randomly selected according to the sampling framework. While GPS-based random sampling techniques cannot be used for security reasons, other techniques for randomisation will be used. In cities and larger communities for which maps are available, communities will be split into neighbourhoods (using existing defined neighbourhood boundaries or participatory mapping), and the number of surveys required divided equally across neighbourhoods. In smaller communities in which fewer surveys are required, enumerators will be instructed to spread the surveys across the community and follow randomly generated directions to reach households.

While similar questionnaires in the past have primarily targeted Heads of Households (defined as those in charge of making decisions for the household and managing resources) as respondents, the questionnaire for this assessment can be administered to any member of an assessed household over the age of 18 who can speak on behalf of the household. This increased flexibility is to ensure that the assessment is not biased towards interviewing men, as most households are headed by men. If such a person is not available, the household should not be assessed. Only when the security situation permits, data will be entered directly onto smartphones during household interviews using the Kobo platforms, with all completed interviews uploaded to the server at the end of each day. In areas where use of mobile technology is deemed unsafe, data will be collected using paper forms with data entry into Kobo conducted by enumerators later on. Enumerators will check and review forms before uploading to Kobo, and where Field Coordinators are part of the team structure, they should conduct additional spot checks each day.

For areas in which KI interviews are the primary method of data collection, enumerators will directly interview KIs and enter data either directly onto smartphones using the Kobo Collect platform, or onto paper forms to be transferred to Kobo afterwards, depending on the security situation.

Where possible, all data collection will be undertaken by mixed-sex teams to enable access to all sampled respondents and ensure gender sensitive contextualisation of findings during enumerator de-briefings. However, this may not be possible in many assessed locations due to security constraints.

Data checking and cleaning

Throughout data collection, the assessment team will monitor incoming data on a daily basis, tracking the locations from which surveys are submitted to ensure that they conform to the sampling frame. Ongoing communication between the assessment team and REACH field teams will allow for immediate follow-up on errors occurring during interviews. Similarly, follow-up identified will be sent to partners for immediate follow-up with their enumerators. Data collected by partner enumerators will also be securely sent to them so they are able to conduct their own data quality and cleaning checks, and correct any errors using an agreed cleaning log.

Immediately following completion of data collection, a final review of data will be undertaken to identify any errors, recode and translate entries. Assessment teams will conduct outlier checks, analysis of 'other' responses, identification and removal or replacement of incomplete or inaccurate records, and recoding and standardisation of entries.

5.5. Data Analysis Plan

Once the SNFI and WASH datasets have been cleaned, the cleaned and raw WASH datasets will be sent to the WASH cluster, and preliminary analysis for the SNFI data will be conducted according to the analysis plan to be developed in collaboration with UNHCR. Analysis will be conducted using a combination of SPSS and Excel, with additional data visualisation using Tableau and GIS mapping software. For aggregation, individual household survey records will be assigned a weight at the sub-district level based on the population of that sub-district (i.e. weighting coefficient = number of people represented per record = sub-district population/number of records in the sub-district). For aggregation of KI records to the sub-district and governorate levels, weighting will be based on the population of the community assessed by that KI (with the weighting coefficient for communities with more than 1 KI calculated by dividing community population by number of KIs).

Primary data will be triangulated with secondary data from available sources, to verify the accuracy of information gathered. Once preliminary analysis has been finalised, a presentation of findings to partners (UNHCR and the Shelter / NFI cluster) will occur in the North and South hubs, along with a joint analysis workshop with South hub cluster members in Amman, to allow further contextualisation of findings and gain feedback on additional analysis required. This will result in the production of the specified final outputs.

5.6. Limitations

While the nature of challenges and limitations can only truly be understood after data collection is complete, the proposed methodology and processes are likely to have the following limitations:

- Mixed methodologies: Due to security constraints, household data collection is not possible in all assessed areas, and data is collected through community-level KI interviews in Ar-Raqqa and Deir-ez-Zor governorates. While indicators have been aligned as much as possible between the household and KI data collection tools, direct comparison between the two may still be challenging, as the former consists of representative household-level data, while the latter consists of indicative community-level data and response options may therefore have to differ in ways that hinder direct comparability.
- Limited comparability with the December 2016 SNFI assessment: While a Whole of Syria shelter and NFI assessment was carried out in December 2016, comparability between that assessment and the current one is likely to be limited. The December 2016 assessment had included sections on WASH and Livelihoods, as well as separate assessment tools for focus group discussions and collective shelters. These components are not included in this assessment in order to make its scope more manageable and deliver outputs on a shorter timeline. In addition, there are differences in coverage between the two assessments that limit the comparability of governorate-level and aggregated findings.
- Security and operational constraints: Given the constantly evolving security situation in Syria, it is quite possible that coverage may need to be adjusted during data collection. While this is mostly likely to occur just at the community level (requiring some target surveys to be reallocated to other communities within a sub-district) it may also take place at the sub-district level, requiring certain sub-districts to be removed from the sample.

8. Risks & Assumptions

Table 3: List of risks and mitigating action

Risk	Mitigation Measure
Change in security situation makes areas inaccessible to REACH or partner enumerators	Security situation will be monitored up to the start of data collection with a clear back-up plan allocating enumerators to collect data from other areas; if the security situation subsides data can be collected at a later point in the data collection period. If it is not possible to gather data from certain locations, analysis will make clear that these locations are excluded when generalising findings across the area. The cluster will be notified and consulted throughout.
Security situation results in travel time to certain areas being increased	The security situation will be continually monitored and alternative routes identified.
It is not possible to obtain approvals to collect data from certain areas	Approvals are only required for specific areas such as Al-Hasakeh governorate. Data collection for this assessment will not take place in Al-Hasakeh governorate, as SNFI and WASH cluster members did not have the capacity to conduct data collection there, and it is therefore highly unlikely that approvals to collect data will be needed for assessed areas.
Randomly selected sample of households generate non-responses	Ensure overall sample contains a 10% buffer, with the aim to survey 10% more respondents than needed to reach the target sample size

Interviewees in some areas are unwilling to participate in the assessment

The survey is anonymous and entirely voluntary, and all households will have the right to withdraw. Survey questions will respect humanitarian protection guidelines and enumerators will emphasise the importance of the assessment when approaching households. If households are unwilling to participate, enumerators will be instructed to move on and find other interviewees.
