This informal settlement is situated on Darulaman Main Road, close to Kabul's famous Habibia High School. The settlement is based on land owned by the Government of Afghanistan and residents are not currently paying rent. The population is largely Pashtun, though 10% are from Tajik communities. The site consists entirely of IDPs who have travelled from Parwan and Nangarhar provinces.

The first 12 households moved to the site from Ghorband, Parwan in 2007. An additional 20 households from Ghorband travelled to Habibia High School in 2008. A year later, 21 households joined the settlement, previously residing in Bagram, Parwan. Three more households travelled from Batkot, Nangarhar to the camp in 2010. The site then remained stable until June 2016 when two final households joined Habibia High School settlement.

Most residents reportedly plan to stay in the settlement as it offers a general sense of security. Residents reportedly also feel they have nowhere else to go.
