Displacement

As one of two sites in the Company Bridge area, this large informal settlement is based on land owned by the Government of Afghanistan. It is not a part of any Kabuli neighbourhoods and residents do not currently pay any rent. The population are all from Pashtun communities. The IDP residents previously lived in Helmand and Wardak provinces, while returnees resided in Pakistan and Iran.

The first 70 IDP households travelled from Sangin, Hilmand province in 2014. A second influx of IDPs arrived in 2015 with 135 households joining the settlement from Nawzar, Helmand. A third wave entered the settlement in 2016, with 20 IDP households from Chak, Wardak and 5 returnee households from Peshawar, Pakistan and Ifshan, Iran.

There is scope for the settlement to expand, with new residents expected in 2017. The current residents reportedly plan to stay in the site as it is affordable and provides the population with a perceived sense of security.
